Two spectacular new table sculptures at the IMM Cologne fair

Bitburg, January 11, 2017

For this year's fair in Cologne BELFAKTO has come up with two totally different but, in line with company tradition, consistently unique new products. The classic straight-lined TRIMUS boasts great attention to detail in the solid wood, while in BOWI a BELFAKTO table features a fashionable untreated steel frame for the first time – not to mention a somewhat confusing structure. On display as well, the design prize winners, including CHORUM, which recently received a nod for Interior Innovations at the ICONIC AWARDS 2017.

BOWI. A well-balanced dinner. This design from the BELFAKTO manufactory is quite spectacular – and a fully functional dining table. Safe and stable, its wooden tabletop rests on two sweeping inverted arches made of anodized blue steel. Visually “off balance”, BOWI is in fact carefully balanced and even at its end can bear weights of more than 80 kg. What is more, it can be adapted to individual tastes as its steel base can be painted any shade. A table that is a true work of sculpture.

TRIMUS. The upright one. This elegant dining and conference table boasts three harmonious elements – a base frame, struts and a tabletop. Triangular shapes and cross-sections lend TRIMUS its characteristic look, somehow reminiscent of a simple wallpapering table. The cross-strut not only stabilizes the table, it first and foremost makes a comfortable footrest. An angular, stylish appearance which fits in well with many different furnishing styles. Quite simply a beautiful table, one which works even in extremely long lengths.

The Manufactory.

The BELFAKTO designs are manufactured in the long-standing woodworking firm of Notte in Bitburg in the Eifel region of Germany. Founded in 1956 and now run by the third generation of the company owners, the joinery produces individual, customized and sophisticated interiors with passion. The family firm has made itself a name over the decades and their reputation has spread far beyond the local regions. In many offices, law firms and villas in Luxembourg, Zurich, Cologne or Frankfurt, their products can be admired. After the widely noticed premiere in 2013 BELFAKTO now offers their exclusive tables worldwide through sophisticated furniture retailers and interior designers for an international clientele.
